NODAWAY COUNTY BOWS IN TRIBUTE TO FALLEN LEADER

VAST THRONG ATTENDS SERVICES IN CHAUTAUQUA TENT

WAS TRUE FRIEND TO ALL

Henry J. Allen Says—Wounded by Politicians—Lamkin Says Pres. Died On Altar Of Service

Maryville bowed in reverence today in memory of the passing of the American leader.

Old and young united in an impressive tribute to the dead. Packing the chautauqua tent to overflowing, the citizens of Maryville and Nodaway county gathered in a memorial.

And what a memorial it was! Heroes of war were there. Those with tottering footsteps who fought for the freedom of a race, those tan-skinned veterans of '98 who fought for the freedom of Cuba, and those stalwart sons who fought for the freedom of democracy—all bespoke silent messages at the memorial service this morning.

And the women were there—those who ultimately pay the price of conflict, gathered together this morning to mourn the passing of one who yearned for a better understanding between the nations of the world.

And the children, too. For Harding loved children and what a tribute it was for them to gather in his memory.

It was a silent audience this morning—only a mere ripple of applause, no murmerings, no voices except those of the speakers. A funeral service could not have been more perfectly carried out—there were flowers, songs, tears, prayers, even the funeral march.

And the eulogies for the departed, by an intimate friend of the late President, and who is more competent to tell of goodness, of greatness, of sincerity, than a friend?

Warren Harding longed for friendship, Henry J. Allen told the memorial audience this morning. He was more like Abraham Lincoln than perhaps any of our Presidents. He wanted to be a friend to everyone and wanted everyone to be his friend, former Governor Allen said, and President Harding craved the affection of all who were anxious to solve the reconstruction problems.

"This is why the nation is bowed in sorrow today," the former Kansas Governor added. "He was wounded by the harpings of the politician who wished to promote a selfish interest. Our late President was a victim of wounds just as much as the soldier who died on the battlefield."

But President Harding was first of all an American, the Kansan reminded his hearers, and he grew more and more to believe the realities of the things that he had preached. The lamented President was a typical example of simplicity, too. He was just a man among men, trying to promote the best interests of all.

"After all, the Presidents of the United States are just human beings like the rest of us," the speaker continued. "But it has become so much our habit to search his life for criticism and Warren G. Harding fell victim to the unjust criticism of his enemies.

"He was the representative of all the strength, of all the simplicity, of all the greatness of American life. The things he talked about were the things we thought about, and his policies will remain the common sense American program."

Henry J. Allen was mourning the passing of a great friend and not infrequently he halted his laudatory remarks to regain his poise. Now and then the tributes were told in a faltering voice.

The pauses found the audience silent, prayerful; only the chirping of a bird in a nearby tree broke the stillness. It was perhaps as quiet and reverent as that vast throng paying final tribute at the services back in Marion, O., today.

"Warren Harding spoke always as an American citizen," continued the speaker, "and he would have returned to his congress more able to speak the will of the masses of Americans. I think he may bring us today to the consciousness of the fundamental things of life, rather than the petty indifferences between class and cast. We are the most blessed nation of all the world.

The speaker then told of the efforts of President Harding to promote peace between the nations of the world; of his calling the Disarmament conference at Washington, when he appealed to the representatives of the various nations to reduce their war equipment. Then the efforts of the lamented President in his appeal for the entrance of the United States into the world court was vividly recalled to the audience this morning.

"The things that will stand out in the Harding program will be his desire to lessen the probability of future wars and his anxiety for prosperity in the United States."

Governor Allen has recently returned from a tour of the European countries. He told of the conditions in the different countries, especially in Turkey. He said that Turkey looked upon the other nations of Europe with fear and hatred but upon the United States with friendliness and respect.

"Our mission in the world is to be plain, and simple, and gentle and neighborly to all the countries of the earth," he stated, "and our position in the world today is due to the efforts of those who have gone before us."

"When Warren G. Harding appealed to the United States to join the World Court, he was expressing his desire that we do not adopt a policy of complete isolation and national selfishness. He realized that the last election did not express the desire of his countrymen never to have anything more to do with Europe. He knew that the United States was too big for that. He realized that in the Permanent Court of International Justice there was an opportunity to give a dignified and effective public service to all the world. His world Court program was a sequel to the Disarmament Conference at Washington.

"This is the way of true leadership; this is the way of Christian civilization and all who wish to walk in our way will have our encouragement and our help.

"Nothing is more needed today than for us to have a new baptism of faith in American citizenship.

"Warren G. Harding's desire for a closer co-operation between the nations of the world, and his hope for a universal prosperity will surely mark his place in history. For our late President was one of the great leaders of the day. He was always known by his wish to do the square thing by all.

"However, while we pay him grief and bury the ruler of our nation, we do it with the fullest realization that we are still going forward; that the man who takes his place will carry on his program, and will speak always as an American citizen. Never was the genius of our forefathers so well realized as today. We will have a leadership as the one we enjoyed under Warren G. Harding. May the passing of a great leader make us realize more and more our duty in the making of a greater nation."

W. C. Pierce, acting as temporary chairman, introduced Uel W. Lamkin permanent chairman of the meeting, who also made an address of eulogy of Warren G. Harding.

"Warren G. Harding laid down his life on the altar of public service," Mr. Lamkin began. "Just as the assassins' bullets struck down three of our Presidents, so the intense physical pain brought on by the reconstruction period of our country demanded that President Harding give all he had, and he did it without protest.

"First of all, this stricken President was an American. I care not what of his background of ancestry, in what environment he was reared, what his economic situation was, he has always been an American. We can see some of those around us today who, due to their early training, have achieved positions of note. What you and I like to see is the life that is lived as Christ would have us live it. So our late President was not only an American but he was a Christian as well."

Mr. Lamkin then told of Harding, the private citizen, Harding, the editor, Harding, the Senator, and finally Harding, the President. When the late President spoke in the various cities of the country in his recent trip to the coast, he was not speaking for himself but for America.

"Then, Warren G. Harding was a

MARYVILLE HONORS WARREN G. HARDING

A RESPECTFUL CITIZENRY WATCHES FUNERAL MARCH

MARCH FOR 12 MINUTES

Uncovered and Reverent Watched the Various Organizations in Silent Tribute

Maryville and Nodaway County paid its last tribute to Warren G. Harding this morning.

A representative, respectful citizenry of the town and county, lining the streets, uncovered and bowed in reverence as the funeral march in honor of the memory of their fallen chieftain passed by. All creeds and shades of political opinion were represented but were submerged under the patriotic feeling, so characteristic to the American people, that "He was 'our' President."

Early this morning there seemed to be a holiday atmosphere about the Maryville streets, which were roped off. People were walking aimlessly about, talking and visiting.

But this feeling instantly changed to one of respect and reverence, when at 9:52 o'clock the mournful touching notes of Chopin's Funeral March, wierdly beautiful, from the Maryville Band, broke into the air, and the funeral march from the Federal Building was started. The sun even seemed to sense the occasion, for it slid behind a cloud and for the moment a heavy gloom cast itself over the sky. The tolls of the church bells, adding a touch of sorrow could be heard above the somber strains of the funeral march.

For twelve minutes the various organizations of Maryville in the march, fully eight blocks long, marched slowly down the streets between the lines of respectful citizens. Patrolmen, England, Partridge and McKee, in full uniform headed the procession. Then came the color bearers, in uniform carrying two large American flags and the standards of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion.

Then came eleven motor cars, flag-draped, carrying the speakers of the morning, former Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas, and President Uel Lamkin of the State Teachers College, and members of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Women's Relief Corps, and the presiding ministers, the Rev. B. F. Cline and Father Lawrence.

Following the cars were all of the social, fraternal, patriotic and civic organizations of the city. Some were in uniform, some had the insignia's of their organization, and others were just marching in a body. The largest unit of the march, over a block of it, was taken up by the school children of Maryville. Among the organizations represented were: The American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Ladies' Auxiliary, Veterans of the Spanish American War, Daughters of the American Revolution and Daughters of 1812, DeMolays, Masons, Eastern Star, Knights of Columbus, post office employees, Rebekahs, Odd Fellows, Twentieth Century Club and Catholic order of Foresters.

All of the stores of Maryville were closed during the funeral march and services, and practically all of them were decorated and draped for the occasion. Many flags at half mast were evident, as were other crepe fringed flags and bunting. Many stores displayed the picture of the late President, mounted and surrounded with black.

Flags Wave Tribute to Fallen Leader

Practically Every Merchant Has Window Display In Memory To Late President—Picture Draped

The American flag waved in the business section of Maryville today.

The symbol of liberty was in evidence on every hand. Practically every merchant had some sort of display in memory of the late President. In some windows, the picture of the fallen leader was draped in mourning.

The business houses and city and county offices were closed this morning in order that all might attend the memorial services, held in the chautauqua tent.

And the flags waved reverently over it all.

Tomorrow

2:30 o'clock—Pageant and final ceremonies of Junior Town.

3 o'clock—Novelty concert, The Hipple Company.

8 o'clock—The Hipple Musical Program.

8:30 o'clock—Edwin Brush, magician.

A Redpath-Vawter chautauqua for next year was assured Maryville this morning when Superintendent T. F. Graham announced that over a hundred and fifty guarantors, more than the required number, had signed up.

This afternoon's program was opened with a surprise number, that being Elsie May Gordon, member of the "Meanest Man in the World," cast, who gave a number of southern dialect readings. This was followed by Dr. Tehyi Hsieh with his lecture on "China."

Tonight's program will be William Keighley and his Broadway players in the famous George M. Cohen comedy, "The Meanest Man in the World." This is regarded by the chautauqua people as the biggest crowd-getter in the list and Supt. Graham has made arrangements for a lot of extra seats. The Keighley plays have proved very popular in Maryville and this one will prove no exception, in the opinion of those who have seen it.

Tomorrow will conclude the chautauqua for this year, the Hipple company giving a concert in the afternoon and a 45-minutes concert in the evening. The evening program will also include Edwin Brush the magician, who is said to be the best ever appearing on the chautauqua platform here, which means he will have to be good. The program has proved of high standard throughout, and the Redpath Vawter people will not let it sag at the end.

Ruth Bryan Owen's lecture on the wresting of the Holy Land from the Turk (for it was an account of that unfamiliar campaign of the World War which occupied the greater part of "From Cairo to Jerusalem" at the chautauqua last night) was an innovation in war lectures. It was more than that. It was a pleasing innovation. Mrs. Owen was with the Red Cross during the three years when the English steadily forced the Turk backward and finally marched into the Holy City. And in reciting the events of that campaign, she found possible a happy departure from the stereotype picture of ruined cities, suffering populations and murdered men. In the opening of her lecture she made reference to the "Arabian Nights." The simple beauty of her story was almost comparable with those old gems.

She cited no statistics; she did not rely upon confusing geographical locations. Drawing in the air an imaginary relief map of the country in which the campaign was conducted, she proceeded by telling the story of the comparatively unknown phase of the allied victory over the German,

WORLD CAPITALS HONOR HARDING

POMP AND SPLENDOR IN SERVICES AT LONDON

AT WESTMINSTER ABBEY

Thousands At Historic Abbey—France Blows Taps At 3—Manila Observes Occasion

London, Aug. 10.—In contrast to the simple funeral services at Marion, O., today, Great Britain paid its homage to the memory of Warren G. Harding with all of the impressiveness that would ordinarily mark the burial of a monarch. In addition to the memorial services at Westminster Abbey, an overflow gathering was present at the services at St. Margaret's Church.

Early this morning a long line formed in front of the Abbey. Its varied make-up was symbolic of the Love that Harding had for all mankind. The rich American tourists rubbed shoulders with humble Londoners. Throughout the city American flags were displayed at half mast. The respect shown for the late President is unprecedented here. At the express desire of King George the Westminister Abbey was used for the memorial services, this being the first time the honor was shown to a dead American.

The tolling of bells at noon marked the beginning of the services. At least 6,000 persons attended. Many women in the crowd, overcome by emotion, sobbed. King George was represented by the Duke of York, the Duchess being unable to attend. J. P. Morgan, who is on his vacation in Scotland and Bernard Baruch, were among the Americans at Westminster Abbey.

The solemn, mournful black was relieved by the brilliant uniforms of high army and navy officials. All the members of the United States consulate were present as well as representatives of all the American organizations in England. The late President's favorite hymn was sung and the congregation joined in singing, "Abide With Me," and "Lead Kindly Light." Canon Carnegie, who assisted the Rev. R. H. Nixon in the services, emphasized the growing friendship between Great Britain and the United States.

Virtually all members of the cabinet were present including Premier Stanley Baldwin, Foreign Secretary, Lord Curzon, and Lord Derby. Others present were Sir Aukland Geddes, British ambassador to the United States, and former Premier David Lloyd George.

Paris, Aug. 10—Memorial services for the late President Harding were held at the American pro-cathedral at 11 o'clock this morning. Bishop Kinsolving of the American Episcopal Church in Europe delivered the memorial address.

Jules Jusserand, the French ambassador to the United States, and Minister of War Maginole, represented the French government. Practically all of the members of the American colony were present as well as representatives of the Paris Post of the American Legion.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon a French bugler blew taps before the monument of France's Unknown Soldier while Americans in the Place De La Concord stood with bowed heads facing westward.

Manila, Aug. 10—Impressive memorial exercises were held this morning expressing the grief of the populace and officials over the death of President Harding.

The entire 31st Infantry of the regular army was lined up around the Yun lamienta and the plaza of McKinley. The walls of the halls and speakers' platform were covered with flowers and ferns. Thousands attended the exercises.

"We can best honor him by living up to these basic principles and policies for which he stoo dand do what we can to make America what he wished her to be. God rest his soul in peace," Governor General Leonard Wood said in concluding a brief talk. Among other notables, who also made brief talks were Justice Johnson, former Commissioner Palma, Chief Justice Aroulion, Judge Crossfield and British consul Harrington.

Cleav Funk of Omaha, Neb., is expected to arrive in Maryville tomorrow evening to join Mrs. Funk, who is a guest at the N. Sturm home.

MARION PAYS THAT LAST FULL MEASURE OF DEVOTION

WARREN G. HARDING SPENDS LAST NIGHT WITH FATHER

LITTLE VINE-COVERED VAULT RECEIVES BODY

THOUSANDS VIEW BODY

All Classes Rub Shoulders Before Bier—Old Marion Star Associates Tearful

Marion, O., Aug. 10—Done with pageantry of pomp and power, done with the trials and perplexities of a high office, done with the worries of a swiftly moving world, Warren G. Harding, Twenty-ninth President of the United States, tarried a while in the little house of his father to receive the affectionate farewells of friends and neighbors before going to that permanent rest in the shady little cemetery that he helped to build.

A Flower-Laden Room

And while he rested again today in the flower filled room, heavily laden with the fragrance of blossoms from all over the world, the great nation over which he so lately presided, stopped its business and joined in with this little town of his, in a mutual respect and sorrow.

Everything Stops

The wheels of great industry stopped today, commerce ceased its bustling grind, the government itself halted for it came to Marion, and clear across the continent over which he traveled only a fe wdays ago, there dwelled the respect and reverence that a free people accords to its honored dead.

Slight Rain Fell

The slight rain that started falling in the misty dawn did not deter friends and neighbors of a lifetime from forming a long, sad line in front of the little house in Center Street this morning. The somber skies reflected the spirit of those who had known Warren Harding for a lifetime. So formed the silent procession past his bier with no thought but to pay that last full measure of devotion rightly due to a great and good man.

No Cast, No Rank

There was no cast, no rank, no favorites in the line that extended from the big maples in front of his father's house clear down Center street to the now empty office six blocks away, where, in other happier years he used to sit at his desk, making a newspaper and helping to make a town.

They filed sorrowfully past the bier and there came high black hats with battered straws, lustrous silks and faded calicoes. The man in the casket with his lips slightly parted, as if in a smile, would have liked that. He was constantly preaching abolition of class and class conscience in America.

Today only one class filed past the bier, a class of sorrowful, reverential, and often tearful, people.

Star Emyloyees Come

Only once during the hours of the forenoon did the soldiers hold up the line for a favored company. That was when those of the Marion Star, who had worked with and for Warren G. Harding in the days when he was a struggling publisher, came by.

None Dry Eyed

Sixty-one of them were there and scarcely a dry-eyed one among them. To them he was more than the President. To them he was "W. G." and "The Chief." There were the printers in that line, whom Warren Harding used to borrow money from to buy white paper, as he often told himself, and theirs was the real sorrow of a life-long association in the battle of life.

The rest were bankers, clerks, merchants, lawyers, laborers and artisans, and boys, who used to hawk the Marion Star about the streets under the guidance of the woman, who buried her husband today.

Marion, O., Aug 10.—The program for the funeral services for the late President Harding, carried out at Marion today, follows:

9 a. m. to 1 p. m.: Body lies in state and was viewed by thousands of friends and neighbors.

2 p. m. to 3 p. m.: A short prayer service at the home of the late President's father, attended only by relatives and intimate friends of the late President after which the body was borne to the Marion cemetery.

3 p. m.: The following burial services:

Song—"Lead Kindly Light," Trinity Baptist Choir.

BURIED AS A CITIZEN

In the Role He Loved Best—Utmost Simplicity Marked Final Services by Friends and Neighbors

Marion, Aug. 10—In a little vine-covered vault, set like a green jewel among the white head marks of the earthly beds of friends, was laid to rest this afternoon Warren G. Harding, Twenty-ninth President of the United States.

Within a stone's throw of the shady resting place were the graves of his mother and sister and all around him sleep the friends and neighbors of the small town, from which he sprang to world eminence. Many of those, who surround him in his final resting place he helped to bury. He wrote their obituaries and the stories of their funerals in the days when he was the struggling editor of a none too stable country newspaper.

Ceremony Was Simple

The ceremony that brought him to the tomb was as unostentious and simple as his kindly heart would have wished.

The Presidential Salute

Only the booming of the Presidential salute of twenty-one guns in the distance, only the great crowd, ebbing about the cemetery, only the presence of an unusual number of men in high silk hats and funerial looking clothes only the bowed heads and tearful faces marked this funeral as being different from a myriad of others that he himself attended in this same sunlit city of the dead.

Buried As Private Citizen

He was buried in the role that he loved best, that of a private citizen and mourned by friends and neighbors passed by the bier in endless lines, sincerely mournful of his going.

The great and the small of the nation were gathered there in a great semi-circle around the little vault that was given to hold all that is earthly of him.

A Cosmopolitan Crowd

The new President of the United States was there cabinet members, supreme court justices, representatives and senators and other officials, and they rubbed elbows, under the leveling influence of death, with those of Warren Harding's friends, whose clothes and appearances denoted a life of toil and not much of pecuniary success. They gathered there in mutual reverence and sorrow over the passing of one, whose highest ambition in life ever had been to be a good friend and neighbor, and who bore the reputation in his home town of having attained his ambition.

Arrive At Cemetery

The late summer sun, which had struggled against the clouds throughout the day, was still high in the Heavens when the gray hearse slid silently into the trim burial grounds. The plot was as neat as Warren G. Harding loved to keep his desk. The hearse moved slowly around the winding gravel path where soldiers kept back the respectful throng, some distance back of the vine-covered mound.

Behind it was the sorrowful mourners of the dead in a half a hundred cars, the President, friends and neighbors, admirals of the navy resplendent in white uniforms shot with gold, and other officials.

Old Friends Came First

The funeral was symbolic of President Harding in life and confirmed with the wishes of his bereaved wife. A dozen men and women, with whom he had worked in happier days, marched immediately behind the flag-covered casket and ahead of the high silk-hatted, frock-coated statesmen from Washington. Prominently placed too were the old time friends and all of those, who had accompanied the dead President on the westward on what proved to be a trip of tragedy and edath.

Then His Favorite Hymn

There floated slowly over the bowed heads of the multitude the sweet solemn strains of Harding's favorite

THE ADVANCE OF CO-EDUCATION

The admission of the two sexes on equal terms and into the same class rooms in colleges and universities, was once regarded as a heretical novelty. But it has become the custom in the great majority of such institutions of the central and western states. In many colleges, however, particularly in the eastern states, it is still strongly opposed. But even in the East co-education gains ground.

Women and girls are reaching out into new fields of effort, and they demand as good opportunities as men have. There is something quite appealing in their desire for achievement, and their winsome manners break down many barriers. In many cases, they are more greedy for knowledge than the boys.

At Yale, for instance, about 300 girls are now graduate or professional students. They study almost everything—art, law, music, etc. A few have worked their way into some ten courses formerly meant only for male undergraduates.

Economy is one argument for their admission to colleges formerly reserved for men. "We have our university anyway, and it won't cost much more to add a few women to the list. It costs a great deal to give the women instruction by equally good professors in separate institutions," says professors and students who favor the fair ones. They assert that it is good for college boys to have association with intelligent inspiring girls.

Some students of both sexes regard the close restrictions necessary in a co-educational institution, as being rather annoying. Many professors think that the boys, when the girls are near, spend too much time spooning. Some teachers find the girls' presence a handicap to frank discussion. Some professors are said to be diffident, so that the presence of women takes some of the personality out of their talks in class.

But there is a tendency for doors once closed to women to open in these days.

OLD FASHIONED CHRISTIANITY

In his recent trip across the country, President Harding several times remarked that what the country needs more than anything else, is the good principles of old fashioned Christianity. After all, here is about what the world needs most. If the American people and the other nations would only come somewhere near carrying out the principles of the Christian religion, their troubles would be solved, and the world would forget the horrors of the past and go forward in peace and prosperity.

The world will never return to the extreme dogmatism of old fashioned Christianity. But it does need that emphasis on the virtues of morality and kindliness which the fathers with all their theological narrowness used to dwell upon and exemplify to a considerable extent.

The world is full of the spirit of grab. People are reaching out to grasp all they can of the world's benefits, with too little regard to the rights of others, and without due consideration for those who are trodden down in the scuffle. Selfishness is rampant. All this fierce-ness of strife creates social bitterness and international hatred, and may blow up some day in another war and hastens the day of social revolutions.

People must stop thinking exclusively about their rights and they must think about their duties also. The Christian faith attempts to plant the spirit of fraternity and helpfulness in men's hearts, and the world will be an unhappy and cruel place until more of this tendency gets into the thought and purposes of men.

It is folly for people to grasb and grasp so insatiately for money and social advantage when life is short. Friendship and the regard and honor of one's fellow men are the rewards that count and accru to our permanent benefit.

Plan for Independence Hall Park

A really appropriate setting for Independence Hall, Philadelphia, a project that has been advanced—and shelved—several times within the last decade, will be provided in the next few years, if plans outlined by the Society of Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence at their congress in Philadelphia are realized. It was suggested that the forty-eight states unite in purchasing all the properties on Chestnut street between Fifth and Sixth streets, razing the buildings and presenting the ground to the city to be used forever as a public square. This photograph gives an excellent panorama view of the proposed site of the park, showing the buildings facing Independence Hall (shown at extreme right) that would be razed under the new proposal.

Digging a Snow Tunnel in July

Two assistant postmaster generals, a panama hat, a twenty-foot snow bank, a mean shovel, a wicked pick—and a July sun. But First Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett and Third Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover are having lots of fun digging a snow tunnel in Paradise valley, Rainier National park, Washington. They went to the coast to attend the postal conference in Seattle.

The world's wheat crop this year is said to be 214,000,000 bushels greater than last year. This, in itself, must have a marked influence on the price. But, suppose the Government should fix and guarantee a higher price and every body should go to raising wheat, what would become of the Government eventually.

When you look at a picture printed from a halftone cut, you simply see the picture. You know whether it is good or bad, but you do not give a thought to the multitude of little dots from which the picture is made and which determine whether it is good or bad. This is about the way a man is ordinarily rated. The little acts that make up his life are not closely examined individually but they make an impression that stamps him as worthwhile or not in the public mind. He is regarded in the aggregate but the little dots make up the finished picture nevertheless.

In 1850 only thirteen of the fifty largest cities in this country were west of Buffalo. Of these only three, St. Louis, New Orleans and San Francisco were on or west of the Mississippi River. Outside of St. Louis, with a population 77,860, and San Francisco with its 34,776 souls, there were no cities west of the Mississippi River with so much as 15,000 inhabitants. Several of the original fifty largest cities have either been annexed to other cities or been lost in the race but, of the fifty that are now largest, thirty one are west of Buffalo and 16 are either on or west of the Mississippi. The changes in seventy-five years have been marvelous and, if the developments of the next seventy-five are as important and far reaching as those of the period behind us, they are beyond the dreams of the most extravagant.

Editor Simmons Had a Narrow Escape

Editor D. C. Simons of the Worth County Tribune at Grant City had a narrow escape from death while on his vacation trip to Wyoming recently when he was struck by lightning and almost killed. Simons with his brother-in-law, W. M. Wilson and two other relatives went into the mountains fishing one day and in a storm the parties took refuge in a shack in the mountains. Simons and Wilson were in the act of moving an iron bed across the room when the lightning struck. The bolt to all appearances came through the chimney hole without connecting with the building, striking Simons on the side of the head. The current then divided, part of it passing through each arm to the iron bed frame, and the remainder going down one leg, and tearing the shoe entirely from his foot, throwing it out in the room. His head and face and one side of his body were severely burned.

Editor Simons returned to Grant City Tuesday and is still in a weakened condition. It will probably be some little time before he will be entirely recovered.

When it is working
Hand in hand with push.

We bet a lot of men in Maryville would not want their sons to follow in their foot steps.

A cynical bacheler observed to us the other day that the only time words will fail the average woman will be when she attends her own funeral.

Our stenographer informs us that the open season for swapping kisses never closes.

Uncle Abner says economy may be the road to wealth but too many of us prefer to take the detours.

If you marry a girl with an independent fortune you may expect to get an independent wife.

We asked the observer of the passer-by in Maryville the other day what was the most unusual sight which ever came to his notice as he watched the goings and comings about town. He thought for a minute and then said he guessed it was the time he saw a Scotchman open his pocket book and a moth flew out.

A pessimist is a man who believes every watermelon offered for sale has something wrong with it.

Louise, the stenographer, says perhaps the reason so many of us are suspicious of others is because we know ourselves.

Our neighbors little girl ate too much candy and as a result became so ill the family doctor had to be called. "I am afraid you have been eating too much sweet stuff" said the kindly medico "Let me see your tongue." "Oh! you ca nlook at it if you want to but it won't tell," she replied.

Our idea of a "perfect lover" is the man who treats his wife as his sweetheart after a half century of married life.

Vagrant Musings

Too many of us are willing to sacrifice a friend to gain a dollar.

The only thing which depreciates faster than an automobile is a husband after the honeymoon has waned.

The reason so many of us never get there is because we slip backward about as fast as we move forward.

Did you ever stop to think that it might be satisfying to try to make someone else besides yourself happy?

Bad luck is what a man calls it when he does something he shouldn't an dit turns out bad.

What is your opinion as to whether a naturally left-handed person should learn to play right-handed?

Answered by

TOM KERRIGAN

Professional Siwanoy Country Club, Mount Vernon, N. Y. A consistent place winner in big tournaments. In British Open, 1921, he finished third, two points behind Hutchison and Wethered, tied for first.

If a naturally left-handed person is considerably stronger and more efficient on his left side than his rig I would say, play left-handed. I the fact is a left-handed player somewhat handicapped, because m courses are laid out for right-hande So, if there isn't any considerable (ference between his left and ri sides, it may be better for him to st playing right-handed, and learn t game that way.

What the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) Means To You

WHEN the Standard Oil Company was born, this country of ours was a land of scattered agriculturists and a few centers of struggling industry.

Power was limited to the physical endurance of horse and man.

Had you lived then you would have enjoyed few of the comforts which today are a common heritage.

In one generation, living conditions in our country have changed completely.

Today, we are a prosperous nation. Our industrial production is intensive. The world is our market.

Petroleum products, created and manufactured by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) have made new industries possible.

Individual opportunities have multiplied in exact ratio to the progress of industry.

New industrial practices and modern refinements have been made possible because petroleum furnished the operating power.

Petroleum supplied the lubricants needed for the speeding up of machinery and the consequent increased production.

With these new practices and the new institutions to manufacture the new products, came new opportunities of all kinds — for labor — for capital—for initiative.

Today you have an automobile—something your father never dreamed of owning.

The fact that you own an automobile is less significant than the fact that the machinery of industry — dependent upon petroleum for its successful operation — has made it possible for so large a percentage of people to own one.

Without petroleum products — the kind of petroleum products manufactured by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) — the brawny arms of every other industry would shrivel to uselessness.

Without Standard Oil Company (Indiana) initiative and industrial daring your standard of living today would be on a different plane.

A PLEASANT PLACE FOR GENTLE FOLKS.

SERVICES IN M'KINLEY'S HONOR

MEMORIAL SERVICES WERE HELD IN MARYVILLE

GREAT MEETING HELD

Services Were Held Sunday Afternoon, September 15, 1901, at the First M. E. Church

Memorial services for President McKinley, who died September 14, 1901, at Buffalo, N. Y., having been shot September 6, 1901, by Leon Czolgosz, an anarchist while holding a reception in the Temple of Music at the Buffalo exposition, were held in Maryville on Sunday, September 15, 1901, at the First M. E. Church. The services were held at 3 o'clock during the afternoon.

The following is taken from the Nodaway Democrat of issue of September 19, 1901:

Memorial services for the late President McKinley were held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the First M. E. Church. The church was filled to its uttermost capacity. Mayor J. C. Donnell presided, and the following order of service was carried out:

First hymn—"Jesus Lover of My Soul."

Prayer—Rev. I. T. Creek, Baptist church.

Scripture lesson, Psalm 103.—Rev. F. C. Smith, St. Paul's Episcopal church.

Second hymn—"Nearer My God to Thee."

Address, McKinley the Man and the Citizen"—James Todd.

Address, "McKinley, the Soldier"—Ira K. Alderman.

Solo—Mrs. Fred Robinson.

Address, "McKinley the Statesman and President" — Superintendent Dougan of the public schools.

Address, "Lessons of the Tragedy"—Rev. S. M. Ware, Presbyterian church.

Third hymn, "The Recessional"—by choir.

Reading of Resolutions and Address—Rev. Fr. Henry F. Niemann, St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

Hymn—"My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Benediction—Rev. O. W. Lawrence, Christian Church.

The following was the committee on resolutions: O. H. Smith, M. E. Church; R. L. Denning, M. E. Church, South; Fr. Niemann, St. Patrick's; N. Sturm, St. Mary's; J. B. Morrison, Presbyterian; W. R. Jones, Episcopal; G. L. Wilfley, Christian Church; B. F. Duncan, Baptist; W. A. Blagg, City.

After reading of the resolutions and some excellent remarks on the same by the Rev. Fr. Niemann, W. R. Jones moved their adoption, which was seconded by Joseph Jackson. Mayor Donnell then put the question and the resolutions were carried with one tremendous aye.

The services lasted over two hours. The closest attention was given the speakers, fine music was furnished by the various church choirs, and Mrs. Fred Robinson sang a solo.

The services reflected the great esteem in which President McKinley was held by our people, their loving tribute to his memory, their patriotism, love of country, and their faith in the perpetuity of our free institutions.

It was a great meeting.

FACTS ABOUT OUR THIRTY PRESIDENTS

OHIO HOME OF SIX, VIRGINIA OF FIVE, WHEN ELECTED

BEATS OATH RECORD

Country Without a President For Four Hours and Forty-seven Minutes

Harding Train Makes Record

The Harding funeral train was the first presidential funeral caravan to cross the continent, having made the trip from San Francisco to Washington. The distance traveled by the train before reaching the burial place, by backtracking to Marion, Ohio, also adds to the long record.

The Lincoln funeral train went from Washington to Chicago, thence to Springfield, Ill.

The Garfield train proceeded from Long Branch, N. J., to Washington and then to Cleveland, Ohio.

The McKinley train ra nfrom Buffalo, N. Y., to Washington and then to Canton, Ohio.

A study of the lives of the thirty Presidents of the United States reveals numerous interesting facts, coincidences and odd features.

For instance, only one of them was a bachelor. James Buchanan, Scotch-Irish, holds that distinction.

Buchanan was the fifteenth President. His home when elected, was Wheatland, Pa. He was inaugurated when 65 years old. He was a member of the Presbyterian church. He died June 1, 1868, when 77 years old.

William Henry Harrison was the oldest man elected to the presidency and Theodore Roosevelt the youngest. Harrison went in at 68, and Roosevelt at 42. Grant was the next youngest by six months.

Harrisons Of Noted Line

Gen. Benjamin Harrison, the twenty-third President, was the great-grandson of Benjamin Harrison, signer of t heDeclaration of Independence and was the grandson of William Henry Harrison, American general and ninth President.

Washington and Monroe were soldiers of the Revolutionary War. William Henry Harrison, Tyler, Jackson, Taylor and Buchanan were in the war of 1812. Lincoln served in the Black Hawk War, Taylor, Pierce and Grant in the Mexican War; Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, Benjamin Harrison and McKinley in the Civil War. Theodore Roosevelt fought in the Spanish-American War.

President Cleveland was a bachelor when he entered the White House. He was married, however, in his first term, leaving Buchanan as the only bachelor President of the United States.

One President has been a son, following in the footsteps of his father. The sixth President, John Quincy Adams, was the son of the second President, John Adams.

Seven Born In Virginia, 7 In Ohio

Of the thirty Presidents, seven were born in Virginia, and five were residents of Virginia when elected. Ohio, the home state of the late President Harding, was the birth state of seven Presidents. Six Presidents lived in Ohio when elected. President Coolidge was born in Vermont, as was President Arthur.

Three Presidents were born in North Carolina and three in New York. Massachusetts was the home state of two Presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams. One President was born in Pennsylvania, one in Kentucky and one in New Jersey.

As to ancestry, sixteen of the Presidents show English parentage, Washington, John Adams, and John Quincy Adams, Madison, Van Buren, William Henry Harrison, Tyler, Taylor, Fillmore, Pierce, Lincoln, Johnson, Garfield, Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison, Taft and Coolidge.

Six were of Scotch-Irish ancestry; three of Scotch, one of Welsh, one of Scotch-Holland and two of Dutch.

Coolidge Beats Oath Record

The nation was without a President for just four hours and forty-seven minutes after President Harding died at San Francisco.

This is the shortest period the highest office of the land has been vacant after the death of a chief executive.

When President William Henry Harrison, the first national executive to die in office, passed away April 4, 1841, two days elapsed before his successor, John Tyler, took the the oath of office and became President.

President Taylor died in office July 9, 1850, and Millard Fillmore, the vice-president, took office the following day.

A day elapsed between the death of Abraham Lincoln and the administering of the oath to his successor, Andrew Johnson. President Lincoln died the night of April 14, 1865, and President Johnson succeeded him as chief executive April 15.

President Garfield died September 19, 1881, and was succeeded one day later by Chester A. Arthur.

A little more than thirteen hours intervened between the death of President William McKinley, who died September 14, 1901, and the accession of Theodore Roosevelt. President McKinley died at 2:15 o'clock the morning of September 14. President Roosevelt took the oath as President at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day, immediately after he had visited Mrs. McKinley to offer his condolence.

Millions and Movies

THROUGH the medium of slender strips of celluloid an actor appears simultaneously on thousands of screens in as many different towns. On the same evening, he entertains great armies of film fans who eagerly pay their money to see his performance.

So the movie star commands a king's ransom for a salary, and a fortune is spent profitably, to provide a proper background for his art. The movie multiplies personality—and earning power.

Advertising does the same thing for a merchant or manufacturer. In a single day it takes his message into thousands of homes — to tell folks why they should have his goods and how to get them. Advertising endows him with a thousand voices with which to tell his story.

But the value of advertising is by no means confined to the advertiser. It has a very definite value to you.

A glance through this paper enables you to sift out the things that interest you. Sitting in your easy chair you can compare values and prices. In a moment you can tell exactly where to go for what you want and how much to pay.

Figure how much useless walking and talking and how much actual money you can save by spending a few moments daily with the advertisements.

Every day this paper contains information for you.

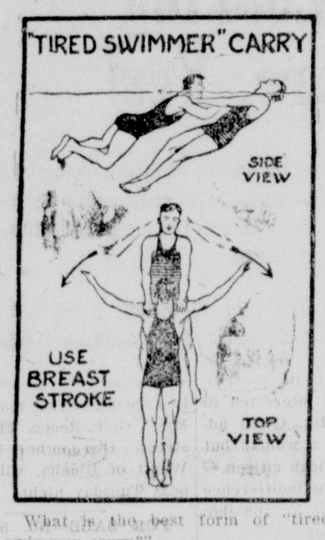
SWIMMING INSTRUCTIONS



What is the best form of "tired swimmer carry?"

Answered by

BILL BACHRACH

Illinois Athletic Club; most famous and successful of all swimming coaches; has turned out champions such as Johnny Weissmuller, world's fastest swimmer; Norman Ross, Sibyl Bauer, Perry McGillivray, Harry Hebner, Arthur Raithel, Bob Skelton, and Mike McDermott.

Use the breast stroke. The tired swimmer lies on his back, places his hands on the shoulders of the rescuer and holds himself at arms length. The tired swimmer allows his feet to trail loosely below the body of his rescuer. This gives the rescuer free use of arms and legs and the tandem formation offers the least resistance to progress in the water.

Parnell to Have New Church Building

The members of the Methodist church in Parnell met Wednesday to begin the work of razing the old building preparatory to erecting a new, modern church. As soon as the old building is removed from off the grounds, work on the basement will begin at once and will be completed and ready for the building to start sometime in September.

All those donating work should meet at the church this week with such tools as are needed in tearing down the old structure. Contractor W. E. Warren of Sheridan, will have charge of the work. The Ladies Aid will serve dinner to those helping on the building.

Arrangements have been made to hold services at the school building until the new church is completed. Parnell Review.

SOMEONE MISSES SOMETHING EVERY DAY

Someone misses something every day if he or she misses reading daily the columns of The Democrat-Forum.

This was proven the other day in the case of the lady who accompanied by a friend went to the store of a leading merchant in this town. The lady asked to look at boys' blouses. She then asked the price of a certain blouse which she picked out.

"This blouse is 90c," said the clerk.

The lady was not able to conceal the surprise in her voice at the words of the clerk, "Why Mrs..... you told me that you bought this same blouse here for 75c just a short time ago. The friend chose to let the clerk do the replying. "That's true, said the clerk, but that was during our annual sale."

"You had a sale!" exclaimed the lady, "that's strange; I didn't hear anything about it."

"Well that's too bad," answered the clerk, "we advertised it in the Democrat-Forum; others sure read the ads judging by the results of our sale."

This is just one incident—it cost this lady 15c that time just because she hadn't read the paper. Every day some merchant in Maryville is trying to tell you how, when and where you can do your shopping most economically. Read the advertisements daily in the Democrat-Forum and save yourself trouble, time and money.

Journalism Field Trip is Completed

2,550 Miles Covered By Party From School Of Journalism In Touring South Missouri

Columbia, Mo., Aug. 9—After traveling approximately 2,550 miles by railroad, boat and automobile for practically a month in Missouri and Northwest Arkansas, the class in special correspondence from the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri returned to Columbia, August 1.

Some fifty towns in Missouri and Northwest Arkansas were visited by the students and eleven state institutions in south Missouri were visited; these were: School for the Blind at St. Louis, Missouri State Teachers Colleges in Cape Girardeau and Springfield, State Hospital No. 4 at Farmington and No. 3 at Nevada, Federal State Soldier's Home at St. James, School of Mines and Metallurgy at Rolla, Missouri Trachoma Hospital at Rolla, Missouri Poultry Experiment Station at Mountain Grove and State Sanatorium at Mt. Vernon.

After leaving Columbia, July 5, on the main lap of the trip the party went to St. Louis and there visited all the metropolitan newspapers and the School for the Blind. The party then left St. Louis via boat down the Mississippi river for Cape Girardeau, and there A. I. Foard, secretary of the Southeast Missouri Agricultural Bureau, headed the party for a 4-day tour of "swampeast" Missouri. During that time the party were the guests of that organization. Here for the first time many students saw cotton and sunflowers growing. Many saw the cyprus tree for the first time.

The method of reclaiming the swamp land was a revelation to many of the party. Travel through the Little River Drainage Area was one of the most interesting of the whole trip. Here many millions of dollars were spent, moving more land than was moved in the building of the Panama Canal, to dig the drainage ditches that raised the value of the land from $5 to as high as $250 an acre.

On their way back to St. Louis the students stopped at Iron Mountain and Farmington. In this district was seen the greatest lead and iron producing regions in the country.

From St. Louis, the second time, the party visited St. James, Rolla, Richland, Lebanon, Springfield, Mountain Grove, and Mt. Vernon on their way to Joplin.

Upon arriving in Joplin, July 19, the party were the guests of the Ozark Playground Association and here John F. Potts, secretary of that association, headed the party for a 10-day tour of southwest Missouri and Northwest Arkansas. The party hired "Fords" at Joplin and after traveling some 490 miles, visiting fifteen towns in this district returned to Joplin July 29.

One of the most interesting parts of this section of the trip was the boat ride down lake Taneycomo from Branson to Powersite, eighteen miles. This lake is said to be the largest lake from the Mississippi river to the Rocky mountains and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf. In this region, especially near Galena, Mo., the tobacco fields were seen. This is the first big year for this crop in this section of Missouri. The growers are optimistic concerning the crop this year.

The party left Joplin on the last lap of their trip July 30 and after stopping at Nevada, El Dorado Springs and Clinton arrived in Columbia August 1.

According to the professors in charge, the trip was a success and there are possibilities of similar trips being taken in the future.

Circuit Clerk Seeks More Pay

Jefferson City, Aug. 10—Application for a mandamus against the county court of Crawford County was filed in the supreme court in banc yesterday by the Circuit Clerk Logan T. Moss of that county.

In his petition he alleges that his salary for the years 1921 and 1922 has not been paid in full, and the county court refuses to allow the amount he is entitled to. His claim is that under the increased population, as indicated by the vote cast in the general election in 1920, he is entitled to a salary of $1,950, per annum, while under the classification adopted by the county court they will not pay him in excess of $1,600 per annum.

It is claimed in his petition that the vote of Crawford County, cast in 1920, shows that county has a population in excess of 20,000, and he is entitled to the larger salary. There are more than fifty circuit clerks in the state whose salaries would be increased approximately $300 per year each if the contention of Moss is sustained in the mandamus proceedings.

In Nodaway County, the county court allowed the salary claim of Virgil Rathbun, circuit clerk, under the increased population, as indicated by the vote cast in the general election of 1920. Mr. Rathbun is being paid $2,500 a year, while his predecessor received $2,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Castillo of Elmo are Maryville visitors today.

Glen Goodson of Ravenwood was in Maryville on business today.

WOMEN ARE MORE VALUABLE IN HOME

BECAUSE OF CITIZENSHIP, SAYS MRS. RUTH BRYAN OWEN

HOME INCLUDES TOWN

In Which Children Reside—Woman Exercises Supplementary Influence Mrs. Owens Tells Reporter

"The participation of the American woman in citizenship does not take her out of her home; it makes her more valuable in it," declared Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen in an exclusive interview with a Democrat-Forum reporter yesterday afternoon.

"In thinking of our home, let us not confine it to the four walls but include the community as well," Mrs. Owen continued. "A home is the environment of the children and a mother cannot accomplish what she should if the community is bad."

Mrs. Owen has the typical Bryanistic smile and the Bryanistic voice—that same voice that swept a Chicago convention off its feet back in '96 and that same voice that has charmed millions by its eloquence.

"Woman does not exercise an individualistic attitude in her ballot," Mrs. Owen continued, "but it is rather a supplementary influence; an influence that is needed to make a well-rounded American citizenship. The woman thinks of her child, not more so than the husband, but in a different way from him. She loves her child in a different way for the terrible price she has paid for it."

Mrs. Owen said that this was one reason why the American woman was so interested in the prevention of future wars because she knew what it means to destroy human life—and what suffering it takes to replace it.

Because of this, the American woman is greatly interested in international affairs. But she is interested in domestic affairs too, Mrs. Owen added, not because she is a woman but because she is an American citizen.

Mrs. Owen said that the indifference to the ballot was largely responsible for undesirable conditions.

"What right have we to complain how our government is run as long as we do not exercise our right of citizenship?" she asked. "Surely it is not asking too much of us to participate in the affairs of our own government. But I believe we are gradually taking more interest in the affairs of the state. The people are being educated in the responsibilities of American citizenship."

Mrs. Owen stressed the point that there are not men and women voters, as such, in America but simply American voters. She does not believe in setting the prowess of woman against that of the man because they are two separate and distinct kinds of power.

The American people are gradually becoming more and more independent in voting, she said, and this will aid the political parties instead of hindering them, as it will tend to improve the qualities of the candidates.

Woman's entrance into citizenship was not miraculous, Mrs. Owen stated, because the two types of minds are needed in the exercise of governmental responsibility; the woman thinks of her home, the church, the school, the factory—not more so than the man but in a different way from the man. The co-ordination of the two view-points is needed in the participation in the rights of citizenship.

Mrs. Owen reiterated her faith in the future America not because of woman's part in the affairs of government but because of a new, a greater, a more appreciative interest of all Americans in their government.

It was exceedingly timely that Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen should talk on American citizenship in her interview because her father was a pioneer in the movement for the new and greater participation by all Americans in the problems of statecraft.

BOWS IN TRIBUTE TO FALLEN LEADER

gentleman" Mr. Lamkin continued. "The time is here when our Presidents must have a firm, Christian character. I do not mean by the term 'gentleman' the man who is numbered among the idle rich, nor in his family history receives the title of 'gentleman.' President Harding has shown that he was a true gentleman, always willing and ready to sacrifice for the welfare of others. He was a gentleman as a private citizen, as an editor, as a Senator and as a President. He was a gentleman as was shown by his love of children. On Wednesday, a little crippled child kissed the casket in Washington.

"America mourns today for Warren Gamaliel Harding, an American, and a cultured, Christian gentleman."

Invocation at the service this morning was pronounced by the Rev. Father Lawrence of St. Mary's Church. The chorus, together with the audience, sang "The Star Spangled Banner." A male quartette, composed of Martin Lewis, Jr., the Rev. R. E. Snodgrass, Emery Airy and Byron James, sang "Lead Kindly Light," President Harding's favorite hymn. The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. B. F. Cline of the M. E. Church, South.

And so Maryville and Nodaway County paid tribute to the memory of Warren Gamaliel Harding, the twenty-ninth President of the United States.

GUARANTORS SIGN 1924 CHAUTAUQUA

giving the picturesque, the interesting and the exciting story without the alloy of horror or confusing political relations.

She followed the English army from Egypt, across the Sinai desert, through the wilderness, over the mountains and to the end of the campaign. She found the human side of everything. She told the story as only a woman could tell it.

She concluded with an appeal for a safeguard against war. This can be found only in popular opinion, she said. Circles of diplomats or well-intended treaties can not prevent recourse to war until the sentiment of the people of the world has reached a stage where it will not support war.

Mrs. Owen's selection of material, personality and style of delivery all went to make her address last night one of the outstanding features of the chautauqua program.

The Welsh Quartet hardly justified the claim of that people to the finest ensemble singing in the world. There were fine singers in the troupe, and Mr. James, singing the baritone part, was beyond question the best soloist who has appeared on the chautauqua platform here this year. Mr. Davies, at bass has an excellent voice.

There were instances of lack of harmony in the family but there was no doubt that the big voices pleased the audience, and at night encores were insistently demanded. Mr. James being called back three times. Singing in the open air twice each day through a long summer season is a drag on any voice, and a chautauqua audience will make allowances for that fact. There were many who thought spice could have been added by the injection of some newer numbers in the program particularly in the afternoon.

This afternoon Dr. Tehyi Hsieh, sometimes called the "Teddy Roosevelt of China," is giving a lecture on "China." Dr. Hsieh is heralded as a cultured Chinese gentleman, with a clear conception of what his country needs and the ability to present the facts with logic and with humor, also.

He outlined the future of China as it might come to be if linked up with America in a struggle to perpetuate the peace of the world, nations on opposite sides of the globe, directing but not controlling the economic and civil life of their hemispheres with a common and united purpose in mind. He was tremendously earnest in his appeal, at times dramatic, never commonplace.

He said the great factors in the development of China are these:

1. A decided system of banking and financial recognition for the development of her resources.
2. The establishment of a constitution form of government.
3. Relegation to the past of the system of classes and the adoption of a thirty-nine letter alphabet.
4. The rise of women to her sphere in the country's activities.
5. The complete elimination forever of the opium drug.

China is destined to become a power among the nations of the world and her progress in the past twenty years has been more rapid than that of any nation under the sun.

Dr. Hsieh had a ready run of stories to deliver which proved conclusively that if the Chinese language held any more difficulties than the American language it would not be possible for any person to speak it. As it was, he said that it was among the more simple languages of the world although very few people in this country were familiar with that fact.

"Chinese women," the speaker went on, "have launched new organizations—clubs, journalistic enterprises and teachers' unions. The schools are training them for business and political life. The women's dress has become markedly American in style. New China has over 25,000 newspapers and periodicals, imbued with a national spirit which solicits the consideration and sympathy of all Americans.

"There are 2,600 Chinese students in the United States schools who will be the potential leaders of tomorrow," said Dr. Hsieh. "They will act as the binding ties between the two countries. Enough funds have been created by the Chinese alumni of American schools to last till 1983. China is destined to come to the front as an international problem; she occupies one-seventh of the land and one-fourth of the population; she is morally awakened, either for good or evil depending upon the leadership of America; the destiny of China will be linked in a movement to dominate the world for peace. Upon the youth of China the nation depends. On them she pins her faith because they are being properly directed. Here are the four principles which are taught to every child; to walk uprightly; to act squarely; to love sincerely and to trust securely.

"China is gorging ahead" said the speaker. "She may be politically weak but she is morally high, physically strong and economically sound."

Coolidge a Private Citizen in Marion

12 Cars in President's Special But No Stately Pomp Was Mrs. Harding's Wish

Aboard President Coolidge's special Train Enroute to Marion, Aug. 10—Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States, sped down the consecrated avenue of sorrow leading to the final resting place of Warren G. Harding, one time chief executive, but now a mourned citizen of Marion, Ohio.

Traveling as a private citizen, the President went to add his measure of tribute when the late President's body will be laid to rest in the ground that he romped over as a child.

The President went as private mourner only because of the wish of Mrs. Harding that the final rites be devoid of all stately pomp.

Twelve cars carried the Presidential party, which included a former president, general of the army, delegates from every branch of the government, Senate, and Congress, and warm friends of the man who was stricken from the nation's highest office. Under orders of President Coolidge the train traveled at reduced speed to retard the schedule so the train might arrive in Marion at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

It was the intention of the President to go direct to the Harding funeral on reaching Marion and to return to the train, at once, after the mortal remains of the late President had been gathered to his forefathers.

While the train sped westward a pall of gloom hung heavily about the members of the party. It was traveling down the same route which the widow had taken her distinguished dead a few hours before. Crowds came to greet th President as they came to greet the Harding funeral train. Profound silence reigned at every gathering. Grief was universal.

Accompanying President Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge was a party of nearly a hundred. W. H. Taft, a former President and now Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, General John J. Pershing, the twelve admirals and generals, who were honorary pallbearers at the state funeral, ranking members of both houses of congress, and personal friends of the late President, all were enroute to the little Ohio town that gave Warren G. Harding to the nation.

Aboard the train, also, were twenty-one newspaper men, assigned to President Coolidge. These men all had "covered" Warren G. Harding during his occupancy of the White House, and together with the fourteen correspondents, who preceded them on the funeral train, will pay a final tribute to the member of the Fourth Estate, who rose from their profession to the nation's highest office.

hymn,

"Lead kindly light, amid the encircling gloom,
Lead Thou me on;
The night is dark, and I am far from home;
Lead Thou me on!"

It was given by the choir of the Trinity Baptist Church. Many times before he went to Washington, he had heard this same sweet solemn hymn sung by the same voices in the church which he attended.

A Favorite Passage

Then the voice of the Rev. Geo. M. Landis, young pastor of his church, came clearly into the air, reading a passage of scripture, especially liked by the departed.

"And there shall be no night and there shall be no need of candle, no need of light of the sun, for the Lord God gives light and will reign forever and forever.

"And the God shall wipe away all tears from the eyes and there will be neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any pain for the former things are past."

A Closing Prayer

Then the prayer. It was given by the Rev. Dr. J. E. Swank, Methodist pastor of Mrs. Harding's church in Marion. He asked that a divine blessing rest upon the aged father and upon the sorrowing widow, who listened with head bowed and a pathetic figure in heavy mourning.

Less Money to the Schools Here

Nodaway County Will Receive $34,444, Being $7,551 Less Than a Year Ago

Nodaway County Schools will receive $34,444 from the state, according to the annual apportionment of the state school moneys. This is a decrease of $7,551 over what was received last year.

The school moneys was $1,040,043.77 less than a year ago. This is due to two things: First, the legislature of 1921 reduced the state tax levy from fifteen cents to seven cents. Second, the income taxes were materially decreased in the last year, and as one-third of the income taxes go into this fund this also contributed to the reduced amount. None of the special aids was affected by the reduction, and the only place where the reduction was felt was the amount of money apportioned each county on the total number of days attendance.

Pickens Believes that Nodaway Will Win

Urges That People From Here Register At Fair In Order To Keep Loving Cup

A letter from Geo. A. Pickens, general secretary of the Missouri Association, and former secretary of the Maryville Chamber of Commerce, reminds the people of Nodaway County that the Missouri Ruralist silver loving cup won by this county last year, will be returned to the Missouri Ruralist tent at the state fair. This cup was won upon attendance at the state fair, Nodaway County having more there in proportion to the distance to go than any other county. If Nodaway County wins the cup again this year this will entitle her to permanently retain the cup. Mr. Pickens, in his letter, urges that everyone from here register and he believes that they can win this year if they try.

Mr. Pickens states in his letter that the Missouri Association tent will be located just north of the agricultural building and near the Missouri Ruralist tent.

More Than 50,000 In Farm Storage Service

Improved, Re-Inforced Triple Joint, Corrugated Construction

Shipped K.D.—easy to erect. Sections in the body of Columbian Metal Bin are joined by a triple flanged joint which forms a three-ply band of steel around the bin every 33 inches of its height. This and the vertical corrugated side sections combine to make strongest bin available. Roof is square box-joint construction with ventilator in center. Metal bottom is securely bolted into bottom U-flange of side walls. Designed to withstand any load possible to put in it and severe windstorms when empty if anchored. Factory capacity of a bin every 4 minutes. More than 50,000 have entered farm storage service.

We've Had Your Grain Crop In Mind For Months

So have the traders on the future grain market. They have been thinking how cheap to buy your grain on the glutted harvest time market and how high to sell it a few months later.

We have been working for months to get enough steel from the oversold mills to supply you with galvanized metal grain bins to store your grain until you can take the traders profit. Your local merchants have anticipated your needs by ordering early to supply you with bins from stock as much as possible. In spite of our effort there might be a shortage. So buy

Columbian Metal Grain Bins

NOW. Thresh directly into them. The scientific ventilating system will condition the grain. The all-galvanized-steel construction will protect it from the weather, from fire and from rats and thieves. No waste. Shrinkage less than 1%. No better collateral for a bank loan.

Rats Destroy Millions Yearly

A Department of Agriculture letter states that "more grain is destroyed by mice and rats or otherwise wasted than is shipped out of counties where grown." That's your loss. Turn it into profit by turning away the rats with steel walls. Columbian Metal Bins provide perfect farm storage at less than a cent a bushel figured over their long life. Come in or telephone, but buy NOW.
